Core Beers

Mark Gerlach spent 25 years seeking out, researching, studying, and tasting German beer. He visited 800 of the 1,200 German breweries until he found 3 breweries that fit his high expectations. Mr. Gerlach speaks the Bavarian dialect fluently and this is where he found the Holy Grail. Each brewery he imports uses Open Tank fermentation and the natural process called Kraeusen so the beers go through second fermentation that creates CO2 naturally. Each brewery has its own distinct character that sets its beers apart.

1

Private Landbrauerei Schönrammer

Freddie Schönram is ninth generation first born to inherit the entire village and the brewery. This brewery is all about "terroir." They use a single strain of Barley Malt called "Barke" grown exclusively for them by 2 local farming families. Their hops are also grown by 2 farming families in specific vineyards for their aroma. All their beers show elegance with hints of rose petals, violet, and lavender. The Gold is a pale strong lager that hits every one of your taste buds. The Pils will make your mouth water. Before you know it you will have consumed 3 or 4 beers they are so drinkable.

Gold, Pils.

Weissbierbrauerei Hopf

The Hopf Wheat beer Brewery is famous for its proprietary yeast. Our yeast gives all of our beers a distinct fruity nose of bananas, pear, mango, and papaya, which matches the food we eat - wild game and freshwater fish. The German Agricultural Society gave Hopf an award of achievement in 1985 and 2000 for being the Highest Quality Wheat Beer in Germany for each of the prior 15 years.

Helle Weisse, Dunkle Weisse.

3

Klosterbrauerei Reutberg

The nuns from Kloster Reutberg have been brewing beer since the early 1400's. They invented the style of beer "Export", so it wouldn't spoil when they went out and visited the villagers. A dense but austere malty beer the Export Dunkel is so complex it shows flavors of Chocolate, Coffee, Molasses, and Caramel. The Export Hell is the original session beer for Germans. Now 450 of the 650 Bavarian Breweries brew this as their cornerstone beer, thanks to the nuns.

Export Helle, Export Dunkle.
